

Narrative + Journalism =
Narrative Journalism

Journalism: Is what we practice everyday right?

Merriam-Webster:

Journalism:

1. A. The collection and editing of news for presentation through the media.

2 A. Writing designed for publication in a newspaper or magazine.

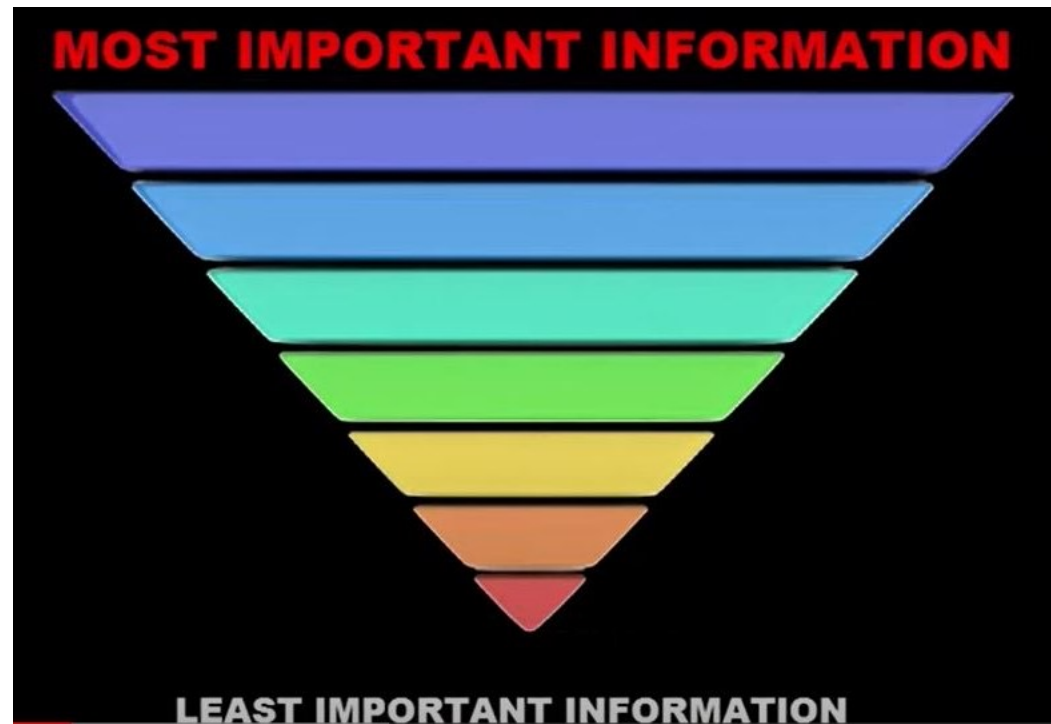

B. Writing characterized by a direct presentation of facts or description of events without an attempt at interpretation.

THE NEWS GATHERING MINING ANALOGY

We journalists:

- FIND this metal underground;
- MINE it -- get it to the surface
- REFINE it; process it.
- CRAFT it into jewelry that meets our standards of quality and integrity.

The Inverted Pyramid We Love and Adore

HEADS UP!!!

Narrative: A story with a
beginning, middle, end.
Organization is chronological.

FISH TALES

AT THE WORLD'S RICHEST BILLFISHING
TOURNAMENT, CATCHING THE BIGGEST MARLIN
MAY EARN YOU MILLIONS. BUT NOT UNTIL YOU PASS THE POLYGRAPH.

30 years, and knew how to get on a line. “Certainly not a damn fish if it had grown that big,” Frost says. “And it did everything it could to get away.”

A successful Annapolis-based tax attorney who grew up fishing the Gunpowder River in Baltimore County, Frost is a serious outdoorsman. He lives at the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay on Kent Island and has fished the Pacific off Costa Rica and Panama. He estimates it took him 20-25 minutes to reel in the prize-winning catch, which he caught in the final afternoon hours before the official end of the five-day tournament. “It jumped [out of the water] several times. I saw right away it was a white marlin,” Frost says. “I knew I had to keep the line as tight as I could. Otherwise it would shake its head until the lure came loose. I just had tunnel vision. Nothing else in the world existed for those 20-25 minutes except me and that fish.”

Winning the “Super Bowl of Sport Fishing,” as the White Marlin Open is sometimes called, in such dramatic fashion was a thrill beyond Frost’s wildest dreams. Getting strapped to a polygraph machine the next morning inside a claustrophobic hotel room on Coastal Highway, not so much. “It was an interrogation,” says the 33-year-old Frost, adding he won’t be competing in the tournament again this month—or, most likely, ever. “They were very aggressive.”

We Are Anglers!!

The full spectrum of story-telling narratives in our environment

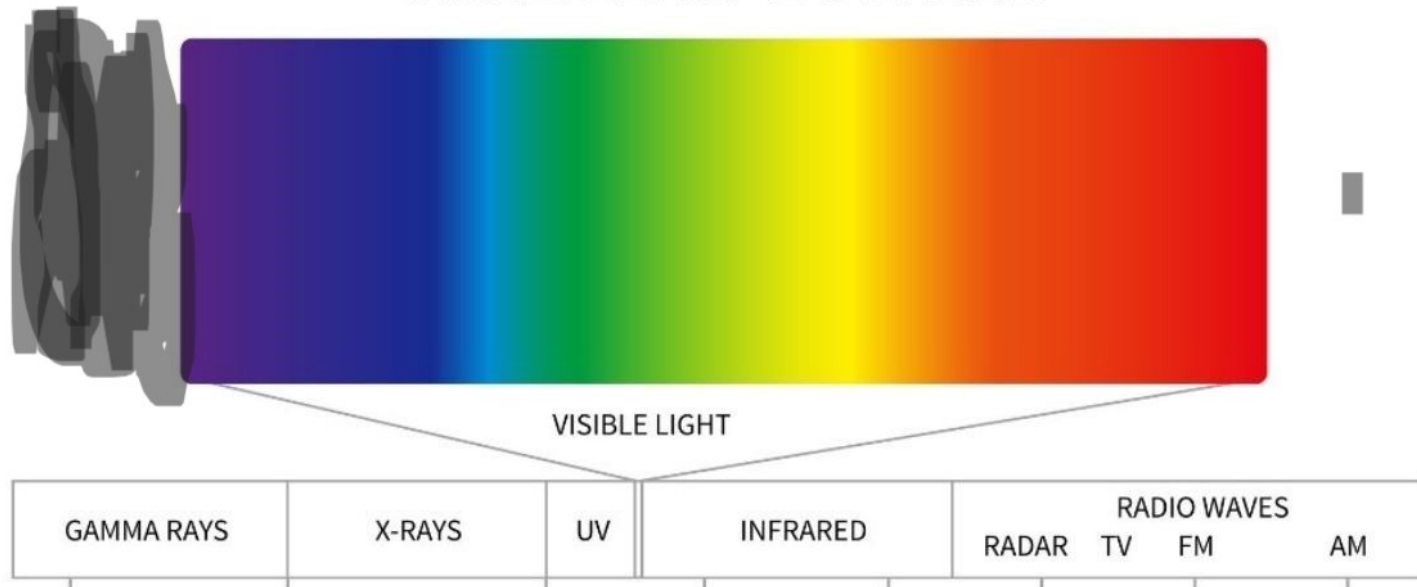

Products ▾

Applications ▾

Support ▾

At

VISIBLE SPECTRUM

A HYBRID NARRATIVE- STORYTELLING STRUCTURE:

1. ACTION
2. REACTION
3. SIGNIFICANCE
4. CHRONOLOGY

U.S. ATTACKED

HIJACKED JETS DESTROY TWIN TOWERS AND HIT PENTAGON IN DAY OF TERROR

A CREEPING HORROR

Buildings Burn and Fall
as Onlookers Search
for Elusive Safety

By N. R. KLEINFIELD

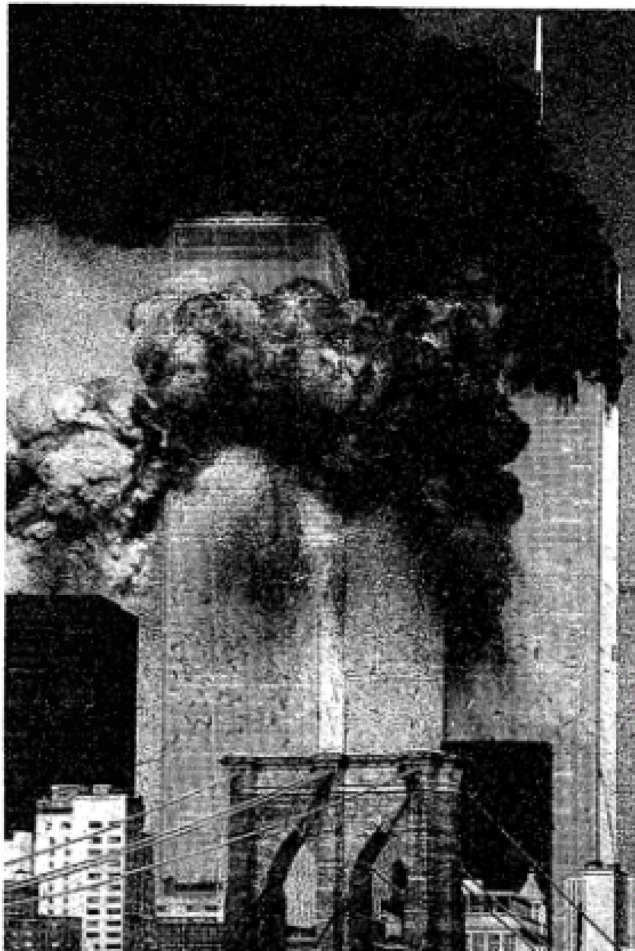

It kept getting worse.
The horror arrived in episodic bursts of chilling disbelief, magnified first by trembling floors, sharp eruptions, cracked windows. There was the usual unfathomable realization of a gaping, flaming hole in first one of the tall towers, and then the same thing all over again in its twin. There was the merciless sight of bodies helplessly tumbling out, some of them in flames.

Finally, the mighty towers themselves were reduced to nothing. Dense plumes of smoke raced through the downtown avenues, coursing between the buildings, shaped like tornadoes on their sides. Every sound was cause for alarm. A plane appeared overhead. Was another one coming? No, it was a fighter jet. But was it friend or enemy? People scrambled for their lives, but they didn't know where to go. Should they go north, south, east, west? Stay outside, go indoors? People hid beneath cars and each other. Some contemplated jumping into the river. The shock rippled to the epicenter of the collapsing World Trade Center towers, the most brutal thought of all finally dawned on them: Nowhere was safe.

For several post-attack hours yesterday morning, people in Lower Manhattan witnessed the inexplicable, the incomprehensible, the unthinkable. "I don't know what the gates of hell look like, but it's got to be like this," said John Maloney, a security director for an Internet firm in the trade center. "I'm a combat veteran, Vietnam, and I never saw anything like this."

The first warnings were small ones. Blacks away, Jim Farmer, a film composer, was leaving his house at a small restaurant on West Broadway. He heard the sound of a jet. An odd sound — too loud, it seemed, to be

Continued on Page A7

President Vows to Exact Punishment for 'Evil'

By SERGE SCHREIMANN

Hijackers rammed jetliners into each of New York's World Trade Center towers yesterday, tapping both in a hellish storm of ash, glass, smoke and leaping victims, while a third jetliner crashed into the Pentagon in Virginia. There was no official count, but President Bush said thousands had perished, and in the immediate aftermath the clarity was already being ranked the worst and most audacious terror attack in American history.

The attacks seemed carefully coordinated. The hijacked planes were all en route to California, and therefore gorged with fuel, and their departures were spaced within an hour and 40 minutes. The first, American Airlines Flight 11, a Boeing 767 out of Boston for Los Angeles, crashed into the north tower at 8:48 a.m. Eighteen minutes later, United Airlines Flight 175, also headed from Boston to Los Angeles, plowed into the south tower.

Then an American Airlines Boeing 757, Flight 77, let Washington's Dulles International Airport bound for Los Angeles, but instead hit the western part of the Pentagon, the military headquarters where 24,000 people work, at 9:40 a.m. Finally, United Airlines Flight 93, a Boeing 737 flying from Newark to San Francisco, crashed near Pittsburgh, raising the possibility that its hijackers had failed in whatever their mission was.

There were indications that the hijackers on at least two of the planes were armed with knives. Attorney General John Ashcroft told reporters in the evening that the suspects on Flight 11 were armed that way. And Barbara Olson, a television commentator who was traveling on American Flight 77, managed to reach her husband, Senator General Theodore Olson, by cell phone and to tell him that the hijackers were armed with knives and a box cutter.

In all, 286 people perished in the four planes and several scores were known dead elsewhere. Numerous firefighters, police officers and other rescue workers who responded to the initial disaster in Lower Manhattan were killed or injured when the buildings collapsed. Hundreds were treated for cuts, broken bones, burns and smoke inhalation.

But the real carnage was concealed for now by the twisted, smoking, ash-choked carcasses of the twin towers, in which thousands of people used to work on a weekday. The collapse of the towers caused another World Trade Center building to fall 10 hours later, and several crashed into the south tower.

SECOND PLANE United Airlines Flight 175

Continued on Page A7

U.S. ATTACKED; President Vows to Exact Punishment for 'Evil'

By Serge Schemann
Sept. 12, 2001

Hijackers rammed jetliners into each of New York's World Trade Center towers yesterday, toppling both in a hellish storm of ash, glass, smoke and leaping victims, while a third jetliner crashed into the Pentagon in Virginia. There was no official count, but President Bush said thousands had perished, and in the immediate aftermath the calamity was already being ranked the worst and most audacious terror attack in American history.

The attacks seemed carefully coordinated. The hijacked planes were all en route to California, and therefore gorged with fuel, and their departures were spaced within an hour and 40 minutes. The first, American Airlines Flight 11, a Boeing 767 out of Boston for Los Angeles, crashed into the north tower at 8:48 a.m. Eighteen minutes later, United Airlines Flight 175, also headed from Boston to Los Angeles, plowed into the south tower.

Then an American Airlines Boeing 757, Flight 77, left Washington's Dulles International Airport bound for Los Angeles, but instead hit the western part of the Pentagon, the military headquarters where 24,000 people work, at 9:40 a.m. Finally, United Airlines Flight 93, a Boeing

STRUCTURE:

*ACTION=GREEN

*REACTION=LIGHT BLUE

*SIGNIFICANCE=YELLOW

*CHRONOLOGY=RED

757 flying from Newark to San Francisco, crashed near Pittsburgh, raising the possibility that its hijackers had failed in whatever their mission was.

There were indications that the hijackers on at least two of the planes were armed with knives. Attorney General John Ashcroft told reporters in the evening that the suspects on Flight 11 were armed that way. And Barbara Olson, a television commentator who was traveling on American Flight 77, managed to reach her husband, Solicitor General Theodore Olson, by cell phone and to tell him that the hijackers were armed with knives and a box cutter.

In all, 266 people perished in the four planes and several score more were known dead elsewhere. Numerous firefighters, police officers and other rescue workers who responded to the initial disaster in Lower Manhattan were killed or injured when the buildings collapsed. Hundreds were treated for cuts, broken bones, burns and smoke inhalation.

But the real carnage was concealed for now by the twisted, smoking, ash-choked carcasses of the twin towers, in which thousands of people used to work on a weekday. The collapse of the towers caused another World Trade Center building to fall 10 hours later, and several other buildings in the area were damaged or aflame.

"I have a sense it's a horrendous number of lives lost," said Mayor Rudolph W. Giuliani. "Right now we have to focus on saving as many lives as possible."

The mayor warned that "the numbers are going to be very, very high."

He added that the medical examiner's office will be ready "to deal with thousands and thousands of bodies if they have to."

For hours after the attacks, rescuers were stymied by other buildings that threatened to topple. But by 11 p.m., rescuers had been able to begin serious efforts to locate and remove survivors. Mr. Giuliani said two Port Authority police officers had been pulled from the ruins, and he said hope existed that more people could be saved.

75 Earlier, police officer volunteers using 76 dogs had found four bodies in the
77 smoldering, stories-high pile of rubble
78 where the towers had once stood and
79 had taken them to a makeshift morgue
80 in the lobby of an office building at 81 Vesey and West Streets.

82 Within an hour of the attacks, the
83 United States was on a war footing.
84 The military was put on the highest
85 state of alert, National Guard units
86 were called out in Washington and
87 New York and two aircraft carriers
88 were dispatched to New York harbor.
89 President Bush remained aloft in Air
90 Force One, following a secretive route
91 and making only brief stopovers at Air
92 Force bases in Louisiana and Nebraska
93 before finally setting down in 94 Washington at 7 p.m. His wife and
95 daughters were evacuated to a secure,
96 unidentified location.

97 The White House, the Pentagon and
98 the Capitol were evacuated, except for
99 the Situation Room in the White House
100 where Vice President Cheney remained
101 in charge, giving the eerie impression
102 of a national capital virtually stripped
103 of its key institutions.

104 Nobody immediately claimed
105 responsibility for the attacks. But the 106 scale and sophistication of the
107 operation, the extraordinary planning
108 required for concerted hijackings by 109 terrorists who had to be familiar with 110 modern jetliners, and the history of 111 major attacks on American targets in 112 recent years led many officials and
113 experts to point to Osama bin Laden,
114 the Islamic militant believed to operate
115 out of Afghanistan. Afghanistan's hard-
116 line Taliban rulers rejected such
117 suggestions, but officials took that as a
118 defensive measure.

STRUCTURE

STRUCTURE:

*ACTION=GREEN

*REACTION=LIGHT
BLUE

*SIGNIFICANCE=YELL
OW

*CHRONOLOGY=RED

119 Senator Orrin Hatch, Republican of Utah, told reporters that the 120 United States had some evidence that people associated with Mr.
121 bin Laden had sent out messages "actually saying over the airwaves,
122 private airwaves at that, that they had hit two targets."

123 In the evening, explosions were reported in Kabul, the Afghan 124 capital. But officials at the Pentagon denied that the United States 125 had attacked that city.

126 President Bush, facing his first major crisis in office, vowed that the 127 United States would hunt down and punish those responsible for 128 the "evil, despicable acts of terror" which, he said, took thousands 129 of American lives. He said the United States would make no
130 distinction between those who carried out the hijackings and those 131 who harbored and supported them

132 "These acts of mass murder were intended to frighten our nation
133 into chaos and retreat, but they have failed," a somber president
134 told the nation in an address from the Oval Office shortly after 8:30
135 p.m.

136 "The search is under way for those who are behind these evil acts,"
137 Mr. Bush said. "We will make no distinction between the terrorists 138 who committed these acts and those who harbor them."

139 The repercussions of the attack swiftly spread across the nation. Air 140 traffic across the United States was halted at least until today and 141 international flights were diverted to Canada. Borders with Canada
142 and Mexico were closed. Most federal buildings across the country
143 were shut down. Major skyscrapers and a variety of other sites, 144 ranging from Disney theme parks to the Golden Gate Bridge and 145 United Nations headquarters in New York, were evacuated.

146 But it was in New York that the 147 calamity achieved levels of horror and 148 destruction known only in war.

149 The largest city in the United States,
150 the financial capital of the world, was
151 virtually closed down. Transportation
152 into Manhattan was halted, as was 153 much of public transport within the
154 city. Parts of Lower Manhattan were
155 left without power, compelling Mayor
156 Giuliani to order Battery Park City to 157 be evacuated. Major stock exchanges
158 closed. Primary elections for mayor
159 and other city offices were cancelled.
160 Thousands of workers, released from
161 their offices in Lower Manhattan but 162 with no way to get home except by 163 foot, set off in vast streams, down the 164 avenues and across the bridges under
165 a beautiful, clear sky, accompanied by
166 the unceasing serenade of sirens.

167 While doctors and nurses at hospitals
168 across the city tended to hundreds of 169 damaged people, a disquieting sense
170 grew throughout the day at other
171 triage centers and emergency rooms
172 that there would, actually, be less
173 work: the morgues were going to be
174 busiest.

175 A sense of shock, grief and solidarity
176 spread rapidly through the city. There
177 was the expectation that friends and 178 relatives would be revealed among the 179 victims. Schools prepared to let 180 students stay overnight if they could 181 not get home, or if it emerged that 182 there was no one to go home to.

183 There was also the fear that it was not
184 over: stores reported a run on basic
185 goods. And there was the urge to help.
186 Thousands of New Yorkers lined up
187 outside hospitals to donate blood.

STRUCTURE

STRUCTURE:

*ACTION=GREEN

*REACTION=LIGHT BLUE

*SIGNIFICANCE=YELLOW

*CHRONOLOGY=RED

188 As in great crises past, people
189 exchanged stories of where they were
190 when they heard the news.

191 "There is a controlled professionalism,
192 but also a sense of shock," said Mark G.
193 Ackerman, an official at the St. Vincent
194 Medical Center. "Obviously New York
195 and all of us have experienced a
196 trauma that is unparalleled."

197 "I invite New Yorkers to join in 198 prayer," said Cardinal Edward M. Egan
199 as he emerged from the emergency
200 room of St. Vincent's in blue hospital
201 garb. "This is a tragedy that this great 202 city can handle. I am amazed at the goodness of our police and our 203 firefighters and our hospital people."

204 All communications creaked under the load of the sudden
205 emergency. Mobile phones became all but useless, intercity lines
206 were clogged and major Internet servers reported overloads.

207 The area around the World Trade Center resembled a desert after a 208 terrible sandstorm. Parts of buildings, crushed vehicles and the 209 shoes, purses, umbrellas and baby carriages of those who fled lay
210 covered with thick, gray ash, through which weeping people
211 wandered in search of safety, each with a story of pure horror.

212 Imez Graham, 40, and Dee Howard, 37, both of whom worked on 213 the 61st floor of the north tower, were walking up Chambers Street,
214 covered in soot to their gracefully woven dreadlocks caked in soot,
215 barefoot. They had spent an hour walking down the stairs after the 216 first explosion. They were taken to an ambulance, when the 217 building collapsed. They jumped out and began to walk home.
218 "They need me; I've got to get home," Ms. Howard said. Where was 219 that? "As far away from here as possible."

220 In Chinatown, a woman offered them a pair of dainty Chinese
221 sandals. Nearby, construction workers offered to hose the soot off
222 passing people.

223 The twin pillars of the World Trade Center were among the best
224 known landmarks in New York, 110-floor unadorned blocks that 225 dominated any approach to Manhattan. It is probable that renown,
226 and the thousands of people who normally work there each
227 weekday, that led Islamic militants to target the towers for

STRUCTURE

STRUCTURE:

*ACTION=GREEN

*REACTION=LIGHT
BLUE

*SIGNIFICANCE=YELL
OW

*CHRONOLOGY=RED

228 destruction already in 1993, then by parking vans loaded with 229 explosives in the basement.

230 There is no way to know how many people were at work shortly
231 before 9 a.m. when the first jetliners sliced into the north tower,
232 also known as 1 World Trade Center. CNN and other television
233 networks were quick to focus their cameras on the disaster,
234 enabling untold numbers of viewers to witness the second jetliner
235 as it banked into the south tower 18 minutes later, blowing a cloud
236 of flame and debris out the other side.

237 Even more viewers were tuned in by 9:50 a.m. when the south
238 tower suddenly vanished in swirling billows of ash, collapsing in on 239 itself. Then at 10:29 a.m. the north tower followed. A choking grey 240 cloud billowed out, blocking out the bright sunshine and chasing
241 thousands of panicked workers through the canyons of Lower 242 Manhattan. Plumes continued to rise high over the city late into the 243 night.

244 "The screaming was just horrendous," recalled Carol Webster, an 245 official of the Nyack College Alliance Seminary who had just 246 emerged from the PATH trains when the carnage began. "Every 247 time there would be another explosion, people would start
248 screaming and thronging again."

249 The scenes of horror were indelible; people who left from the 250 broken towers, people who fought for pay phones, people white
251 with soot and red with blood. "We saw people jumping from the 252 tower as the fire was going on," said Steve Baker, 27. "The sky went 253 black, all this stuff came onto us, we ran."

254 The timing was murderous for the armada of rescue vehicles that 255 gathered after the planes crashed, and were caught under the 256 collapsing buildings. Many rescue workers were reported killed or 257 injured, and the anticipation that Building 7 would soon follow led 258 to a suspension of operations. The firefighters union said that at least 259 200 of its members had died.

260 Mayor Giuliani, along with the police and fire commissioners and 261 the director of emergency management, was forced to abandon a
262 temporary command center at 75 Barclay Street, a block from the 263 World Trade Center, and the mayor emerged with his gray suit
264 covered with ash.

265 In the evening, officials reported that buildings 5 and 7 of the 266 World Trade Center had also collapsed, and buildings all around

267 the complex had their windows blown out. The Rector Street
268 subway station collapsed, and the walkway at West Street was gone.

269 World leaders hastened to condemn the attacks, including
270 Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat and Libya's Muammar el-Qaddafi.

271 European leaders began quiet discussions last night about 272 how they might assist the United States in striking back, and 273 Russia's president, Vladimir Putin, joined in expressing support for 274 a retaliatory strike.

275 But in the West Bank city of Nablus, rejoicing Palestinians, who 276 have been locked in a bitter struggle with Israel for almost a year,
277 went into the streets to chant, "God is great!" and to distribute 278 candies to celebrate the attacks.

279 Many governments took their own precautions against attack. Israel
280 evacuated many of its embassies abroad, and non-essential staffers
281 at NATO headquarters in Brussels were ordered home.

282 In Afghanistan, the ruling Taliban argued that Mr. bin Laden could 283 not have been responsible for the attacks. "What happened in the 284 United States was not a job of ordinary people," an official, Abdul 285 Hai Mutmaen, told Reuters. "It could have been the work of 286 governments. Osama bin Laden cannot do this work."

287 Apart from the major question of who was responsible, a host of 288 other questions were certain to be at the forefront in 289 coming days and weeks. One was the timing -- why Sept. 11?

290 The date seemed to have no obvious meaning. One of the men
291 convicted in the bombing of the United States Embassy in Nairobi
292 in 1998, in which 213 were killed, was originally scheduled for 293 sentencing on Sept. 12. But the sentencing of the man, Mohamed
294 Rasheed Daoud al-'Owhali, had been put off to mid-October.

295 It was possible that Mr. Al-'Owhali and the others convicted with 296 him were close witnesses to the bombings, since terror suspects
297 typically await sentencing at the Metropolitan Correctional Center
298 in Lower Manhattan. Officials have not confirmed that the 299 convicted Nairobi bombers are there.

300 Many questions would also be raised about how hijackers managed 301 to seize four jets with all the modern safeguards in place. Initial 302 information was sketchy, although a passenger on the United 303 Airlines jetliner that crashed in Pennsylvania managed to make a 304 cellular phone call from the toilet. "We are being hijacked, we are

305 being hijacked," the man shouted at 9:58 a.m. As he was speaking,
306 the plane crashed about eight miles east of Jennerstown, killing all 307 45 aboard.

308 For all the questions, what was clear was that the World Trade
309 Center would take its place among the great calamities of 310 American history, a day of infamy like Pearl Harbor, Oklahoma
311 City, Lockerbie.

312 The very absence of the towers would become a symbol after their 313 domination of the New York skyline for 25 years. Though initial 314 reviews were mixed when the towers were dedicated in 1976, they 315 came into their own as landmarks with passing years. King Kong
316 climbed one tower in a remake of the movie classic.

317 In April, the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which ran 318 the World Trade Center through its first 30 years, leased the 319 complex for $3.2 billion to a group led by Larry A. Silverstein, a 320 developer, and Westfield America Inc.

321 In recent years, the complex has filled up with tenants and revenues
322 have increased. In addition to the towers -- designed by the 323 architect Minoru Yamasaki, each 1,350 feet tall -- the complex
324 included four other buildings, two of which were also gone, for a
325 total of 12 million square feet of rentable office space.

Crucial elements of narrative:

SETTING

CHARACTERS

CONFLICT

PLOT

Little Red Riding Hood

PROBLEM

Little Red Riding Hood finally arrives. She soon notices that the wolf is pretending to be her Grandma. She screams for help.

FALLING ACTION

Just as the wolf is about to eat Little Red Riding Hood, the Woodcutter arrives and chases the wolf away. The wolf is arrested and taken to jail.

BUILD-UP

Little Red Riding Hood meets the wolf. The wolf asks Little Red Riding Hood where she is going. He then rushes to her Grandma's house. He locks Grandma in the cupboard and pretends to be her.

BEGINNING

Little Red Riding Hood has a basket of food to give to her sick Grandma. She walks through the woods towards her Grandma's house.

ENDING

Little Red Riding Hood, Grandma, and the Woodcutter live happily ever after.

A fun narrative structure to work with

FIRST A STRAIGHT-FORWARD CHRONOLOGY IN FIVE PARTS

- 1. Beginning
- 2. Build-Up
- 3. Problem
- 4. Suspense leading right up to the mountain-top
- 5. Climax/Falling/Ending

NOW, TAKE PART FOUR AND MAKE IT PART ONE

- 4. Suspense leading right up to the mountain-top
- 1. Beginning
- 2. Build-Up
- 3. Problem
- 5. Climax/Falling/Ending